ADHA Mission Statement

To improve the public's total health, the mission of the American Dental Hygienists' Association is to advance the art and science of dental hygiene by ensuring access to quality oral health care, increasing awareness of the cost-effective benefits of prevention, promoting the highest standards of dental hygiene education, licensure, practice and research and representing and promoting the interests of dental hygienists.

ADVANCED DENTAL HYGIENE PRACTITIONER

ADHP Policies

- The American Dental Hygienists' Association advocates the creation of an advanced dental hygiene practitioner who provides diagnostic, preventive, restorative and therapeutic services directly to the public.
- The American Dental Hygienists' Association supports a standardized educational curriculum developed by the American Dental Hygienists' Association for the advanced dental hygiene practitioner.

Historical Perspective

Why is ADHA pursuing this?

- Access to oral health care crisis in the U.S.
- Heightened awareness for the need for a “mid-level practitioner”
- Compliments the ADHA’s commitment to resolve health care disparities
- Workforce Supply, Demand and Distribution

National Call to Action

- Identified the need to enhance oral health workforce capacity in the United States.
- ADHP – a proposed cost-effective response
- The ADHP will provide diagnostic, preventive, therapeutic and minimally invasive restorative services to the underserved public and connect those in need with more advanced care.
- June 2004: ADHA membership adopted the ADHP Resolution calling for development of a curriculum to prepare dental hygienists who will practice at an advanced level.
- This master's level curriculum builds upon the foundation of existing dental hygiene education.

ADHP Vision Statement

- The advanced dental hygiene practitioner will improve the underserved public's health and access to quality, cost-effective oral health care and appropriate referrals within multidisciplinary healthcare teams.

Advanced Dental Hygiene Practitioner

Why Dental Hygienists?

- Projected growth in workforce
- Projected growth in educational programs
- Market forces creating advanced practice
- Advanced education already in place
  - 11 MSDH Graduate programs in place
- Avoid duplication in education and training
- Potential for cost-savings in cross training
- Opportunity to revise efficiency in delivery of oral health care

The ADHP ...

ADHP Commentary

“Additional flexibility and capacity of the oral health care workforce is sorely needed.”

A National Call to Action to Promote Oral Health, Office of the Surgeon General, June 2000

“The APHA actively supports innovative programs and practices to help alleviate the great unmet oral health need...”

American Public Health Association, December 2005

“The ADHP, a role comparable to the nurse practitioner, presents a timely and appropriate way to explore new approaches to oral health care delivery...”

Oral Health Section, American Public Health Association, March 2006

“It is time to find a new way to deliver oral health care services; it is time to test the feasibility of the ADHP concept.”

National Rural Health Association, January 2005

ADHP Report Language

“The Committee is aware that dental disease disproportionately affects our nation’s most vulnerable populations, including many in rural America. New ways of bringing oral health care to rural and underserved populations are needed. The Committee encourages HRSA to explore alternative methods of delivering preventive and restorative oral health services in rural America. Specifically, the Committee encourages HRSA to explore development of an advanced dental hygiene practitioner who would be a graduate of an accredited dental hygiene program and complete an advanced educational curriculum, which prepares the dental hygienist to provide diagnostic, preventive, restorative and therapeutic services directly to the public in rural and underserved areas.”

No single oral health care profession, by itself, can meet the needs of the public. Only through collaborative effort of all of us will the American public receive the oral care it needs and deserves.
